

Lionel E. Berry Jr.

Lionel was born and raised in Oahu, Hawaii. He left home to join the United States Marine Corps as a teenager. Lionel met his wife of 52 years, Marguerite, while he was in the Marines and stationed at El Toro in the early 1950s. His duties included helicopter maintenance at the Tustin Air Station. Lionel was a patriot and remained extremely proud of his military career and service to his country throughout his life. Together, he and Marguerite had 6 children. He was a family man who loved his wife, children, and grandchildren deeply. He enjoyed woodworking, vacationing back home in Hawaii, and spending quality time with his family. His post military career was with Tustin School District, where he held many classified positions.
